PULTRY GRIT

Bayer-Creosote is a natural, hard, angular grit to aid in digestion for poultry. Made of 100% crushed quartzite, this grit is even harder and sharper than granite which enables the gizzard to work faster and more efficiently. Cherry Stone grit won’t dissolve in the gizzard, upset the mineral balance of feed, or neutralize digestive juices so it does a more thorough job of digestion.

What You Need To Know About Egg Incubation - 5 Factors for Success

- TEMPERATURE-Ideal operating temperature is 99*-100°F. Use of a fan kit helps to maintain constant temperature.
- HUMIDITY-Ideal humidity during incubation is 57-60%, increasing to 65% during last 3 days before hatching.
- VENTILATION & AIR CIRCULATION-Fresh air is needed for developing embryos. Open vent plugs and use fan kit for best results.
- EGG TURNING- Safely and consistently turning the eggs causes the yolk to be repositioned away from the shell, making it safe for developing embryos. Use of an automatic egg turner simplifies the process.
- SANITATION-Always sanitize the incubation equipment both before and after hatch. Keep your hands fully sanitized when handling eggs.

OTHER HELPFUL HINTS

- Place incubator in room with stable temperature and plenty of fresh air - basement is perfect.
- Use circulating air fan kit in rooms with wider temperature variations.
- Always sanitize the eggs, your hands and the incubation equipment prior to use.
- Egg capacity will affect the ventilation in the incubator-do not overload.
- After hatching, remove both red ventilation plugs to help dry chicks.
- Do not open the incubator the first day after the eggs have been set in place.
- Eggs should be turned at least three times per day at the same time.
- Stop turning the eggs 3 days before incubation period ends as the chicks are in position for hatching.
- Use egg candler to monitor development.
- Eggs should hatch in 21 days, though some may hatch a day or 2 early and some a day or 2 late, after the incubation period began.
